Creating Compound Sentences

Directions: Write twenty compound sentences. A compound sentence is two or more clauses joined by a coordinating conjunction.

1. Underline your subjects.
2. Circle your predicates.

Coordinating Conjunctions: for, and, nor, but, or, yet, so

Example: Mr. Morton was going to ride his motorcycle, so he put on his helmet.

Subject                  Predicate

1. ____________________________________________
   ____________________________________________

2. ____________________________________________
   ____________________________________________

3. ____________________________________________
   ____________________________________________

4. ____________________________________________
   ____________________________________________

5. ____________________________________________
   ____________________________________________

6. ____________________________________________
   ____________________________________________

7. ____________________________________________
   ____________________________________________

8. ____________________________________________
   ____________________________________________

9. ____________________________________________
   ____________________________________________

10. ____________________________________________
    ____________________________________________